- High School Diploma or equivalent
- Possess a valid driver's license
- Pass an oral interview, polygraph exam, a medical exam, physical agility test, and drug screening
- Pass a background check and be fingerprinted
- Be willing to attend Basic Police Academy for 20 weeks in Richmond, Kentucky

About the Police Department:

The Bellevue Police Department provides 24-hour police protection for the City of Bellevue, Kentucky, which is located in the northernmost portion of Campbell County. The department employs 11 full-time sworn officers, as well as a police clerk. Calls for service are dispatched to the officers from the Campbell County Consolidated Dispatch Center (CCCDC), which is located at 998 Monmouth Street, Newport, Kentucky. CCCDC dispatches all calls for police and fire service to all agencies and departments in Campbell County.

Each officer, regardless of rank, is responsible for routine patrol of the city and for responding to calls for service. Additionally, each officer remains responsible for performing other duties within his area of specialty. These other duties include criminal and crime scene investigations, fingerprinting, bicycle patrol, community-oriented issues, and certain administrative functions.

The Bellevue Police Department currently schedules officers 10 hours a day four times a week with rotating off days. Scheduling the officers this way allows them to have three days off every week and then every fourth week they receive three four-day weekends in a row.

About the City of Bellevue:

Bellevue, Kentucky, is a Home Rule class city and is situated in the northernmost portion of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Incorporated on March 15, 1870, Bellevue is located on the banks of the Ohio River, across from Cincinnati, Ohio, in Campbell County. The most recent population was estimated to be about 5,955. Newport, Kentucky, is to the west; Dayton, Kentucky, is directly to the east; and Fort Thomas, Kentucky, touches on the southern border. We take enormous pride in our history and the historic charm of our quaint river city. The abundance of historic, unique architecture, as well as the many amenities Bellevue boasts makes it an ideal choice for relocation of individuals and families, as well as businesses.
